

LEWISBURG BICENTENNIAL Lifetime Interview Project

Interviews of family, friends, citizens from our older generations who live in the Lewisburg community.

September 11, 2018

One of the most powerful tools in doing the Lifetime Interview Project was the interviewing of family members and/or friends from our older community to preserve their memories and to bring together their perceptions and knowledge from the past. Belinda (Zumstein) Harry and Brenda (Zumstein) Gullickson started these interviews with the vision of sharing individuals' stories and past knowledges with the community.

An interview can be one of the ways to paint a visual portrait of earlier days, the changes that occurred throughout the years, and how our community adapted to these changes. The information gained can provide knowledge about things we never knew and help us see and experience the difference in living then verses how we live today. The Lifetime Interview Project focuses on talking to our older citizens to record thoughts from their growing up, stories about various events in their lives and milestones.

With beginning this project, our hope is that it can evolve into the continuing collection of memories from our oldest community members, which can be shared and expanded upon with additions at various future celebrations and events, and even become a tradition for succeeding generations.

If you're interested in purchasing 12-hours of interviews from many special citizens from our community, please complete this application form and submit it as noted below by October 31, 2018. The interviews will be uploaded to a 128 GB flash drive.
